RANCHER OF ATHERTON TAKES OWN LIFE WHEN IN CAR ON BROADWAY

Jos. B. Feliz, Well Known Resident Shoots
Self in Head; Leaves Note Saying
Financial Worries Cause

Joseph Bertrum Feliz, well-known rancher of Atherton, and a member of a pioneer family of this county ended his life shortly before noon yesterday by shooting himself while sitting in his parked car on Broadway. A motorist passing the parked car at the corner of Broadway and Maple street noticed the peculiar position in which the man was sitting and notified Chief of Police C. L. Collins.

Collins hurried to the car, and found Feliz sitting upright in the car with a .25 automatic beside him on the seat of the car, and a wound in his head. Deputy Coroner John Layne was summoned and the body removed to the undertaking parlor. Upon it was found a note in which Feliz asked his family to forgive him for his act, and stated that financial worries had caused him to end his life.

Feliz was born in La Honda about 51 years ago. For the past 30 years he had been living on the ranch at Atherton. In the latter community he took an active part in civic affairs and was one of the first police officers appointed when Atherton was incorporated as a city. He was also candidate for constable in this township on two occasions.

The deceased was the husband of Mrs. Ceres Feliz, and was the father of Elwin, Bert and Miss Inez Feliz and Mrs. J. M. Crouse. He was the brother of John D., Chano, Alepio, Morris and Donald Feliz, Mrs. Jack Leahy and the late Mrs. John Billbach.

No definite funeral arrangements had been made up until a late hour yesterday. An inquest has been set for Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the parlors of Yaying & Tinney.

Realty Signs in Atherton Removed

The removal of large real estate signs from Atherton, or the replacement of the large signs with smaller ones, is being sought by the Atherton city council. The council is meeting with the co-operation of the real estate dealers, according to latest reports, and most of the large and unsightly signs have been removed.

Two Injured in Highway Crash

Two persons were injured in an early morning collision on the highway in San Bruno early Wednesday morning. The accident occurred when a car driven by A. Jordan, San Francisco, crashed into the rear of one driven by Daniel Sullivan, also of San Francisco.

Sullivan's car was upset by the impact, and burst into flames. The San Bruno fire department was called to extinguish the fire, but the car was a complete loss. Sullivan was badly burned about the face and hands by the fire, and was taken to the South San Francisco hospital for treatment. George Krenke, who was riding with Jordan, was also injured in the crash, and was also taken to the South San Francisco hospital.

Lineman Held for Automobile Theft

C. E. Grant, 24, a lineman, was arrested by Officers Snider and Forgarty yesterday after he purchased some gasoline from the Hotchkiss Bros. service station at Broadway and the highway and then drove away without paying. In addition to the charge of stealing the gasoline, Grant faces a charge of driving while intoxicated and a charge in San Francisco of stealing a car.

Woman's Club Chairman in Garden Talk

Mrs. John W. Vickerson, state chairman of the Garden Section, Federation of Woman's Clubs, gave an interesting talk at the Redwood City Woman's Club yesterday on City Woman's Club yesterday on the planning of gardens with reference to trees, their shade and effect and discussed at length the different trees, plants and shrubs that should be grown in all gardens. A well kept garden is an asset to the city and state beautiful, Mrs. Vickerson declared.

Emphasis was placed on the propagating to trees, plants and shrubs native to California.

During the afternoon there was a plant exchange with Mrs. Rupert Johnson and Mrs. H. W. Forman in charge.

Tea hostesses were Mrs. Henrietta Jacobus and Mrs. R. E. Savage.

Woman Struck Wednesday on El Camino Real

San Francisco Woman Is Confused in Crossing
Highway

Becoming confused when she was crossing the state highway in the southern part of Redwood City, Mrs. George Clark, 2101 Sacramento street, San Francisco stepped in front of a car driven by Giovanni Oberdi, 37, Abby street, San Francisco, and was seriously injured.

The accident occurred at 12:50 Wednesday afternoon in front of the Redwood City Nursery on the highway. Mrs. Clark was with her daughter, and had left Miss Clark and her car on the west side of the highway while she crossed to the east side. When just past the middle of the highway, according to Oberdi, Mrs. Clark appeared to become confused and crouched down on the highway, at the same time pulling her coat over her head.

The accident was investigated by Police Officer Thorpe. Mrs. Clark was found to be badly injured and was sent to the Mills Memorial hospital in an ambulance. Officer Thorpe found a number of witnesses to the accident, among them being Rosie Oberdi and Antoniet Belloni, both of Menlo Park, who were riding in the car with Oberdi.

Dr. R. D. Howe was called and found that Mrs. Clark was suffering from severe contusions and abrasions, and a possible fracture of one leg.

GIRL SCOUT ORDER NOW 19 YEARS OLD

This is "birthday" week for the American Girl Scouts who on Thursday reaches the official age of nineteen.

It was on the afternoon of March 12, 1912, that Juliette Low assembled the eleven girls and the leader whom she had chosen as pioneers of Girl Scouting in this country. They met in the front room on the first floor of the Louisa Porter Home at the corner of Drayton and Charlton streets, Savannah, Ga. The first girl to register was Daisy Gordon, niece of the founder. She is now Mrs. Samuel Lawrence, of Savannah, and still a Girl Scout.

Mrs. Low opened the afternoon program with an informal talk on the purpose and requirements of Scouting. Then she taught the girls some tests, and the rest of the time they played games.

Now the Girl Scouts number a quarter of a million. They meet in thousands of places—"Little Houses" huts and patrol corners. They spend their vacations in some five hundred and fifty camps, up-to-date, in which all the most modern ideas in sanitation and recreation are incorporated.

By contrast, this description of one of the first camps shows from what Girl Scouting grew. It was Camp Wallela, near Savannah, now as modern as the rest.

In those days Wallela housed only twenty girls who were taken to and from camps by the Fire Department.

"There was no water," writes a pioneer Girl Scout, (except the river) nearer than a half mile, no lights except two kerosene lamps, one of which had a broken chimney. The other smoked badly, and no trimming of the Wick seemed to improve it. In the kitchen there was a rusty cook stove which had to be coaxed and petted for an hour or two to get it to burn. Our daily struggle began with the stove and we had breakfast whenever it permitted us to do so.

They had the spirit of scouting in those days, but the skill was yet to come. It has come through these eighteen years. For the Girl Scout who makes her debutante's bow this week, does not need a stove, thank you. Being a scout, she can manage nicely with a flat stone and a few sticks. The older she gets, the harder she grows.

BENCH WARRANT ISSUED

Kiwanians Hear Talk on Alaska

The adventures of two travelers in Alaska were interestingly told at the meeting of the Kiwanis Club this week by Frank Griffin, physical education director at the high school. Griffin and Darel Childers, a student at the high school, made the trip to Alaska and through the section made famous by the gold rush of 1898.

Their trip took them through the Inland Passage to Juneau, then to White Horse, Circle City and Dawson, and was made with very little expense. A large part of the trip through Alaska was made in a 14-foot row boat. The pair met with many interesting experiences because of their method of travel, and the story of the trip was told in an interesting manner by the speaker.

The chairman of the meeting was Amerigo Rossi, of the Bank of America. The club had as its special guest, Bob Albers, former student at the high school, who won fame in the Y. M. I. basketball game last Saturday by making more than half of the points scored by his team. Albers is now enroute to Kansas City with the Y. M. I. team to compete in the national championship.

Griffin spoke before the Kiwanis club at a previous meeting, at which time he told of a visit made by him to the leper colony in the Hawaiian Islands. His talks are always enjoyed by the members of the Kiwanis club.

Exchange Club Told of Cancer

"There is no known cure for cancer in its more malignant form" was the statement of Dr. J. L. Pritchard of San Jose in an address before the Redwood City Exchange Club at its dinner meeting in the Hotel Sequoia Tuesday night. Some cancer growth can be checked or removed in the early stages of their development, he said.

President Edmund Scott presided, assisted by L. E. Kenny, president of the Santa Clara Exchange Club, and 14 members of the latter club were in attendance at the meeting.

Past President Wilbur Dosske was presented with a past president's pin by Dr. W. B. Langston, district governor.

Several vocal and instrumental solos were enjoyed by the members during the evening.

P. G. & E. Plans Big Expenditures

With a budget for construction maintenance approximating $2,500,000 for the San Jose division of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, development plans for 1931 contemplated improved and extended service facilities to meet the continued growth of this territory, according to I. B. Adams, Division Manager.

For major items of expenditure in the electric department there has been appropriated $10,050 for additional transformers at the Alum Rock substation; $15,636 for increased equipment at the Los Gatos substation; $34,245 for replacing poles in the San Jose district; $19,255 for new circuits at Redwood City; $11,705 for re-locating lines in Redwood City; $60,000 for rebuilding the Millbrae substation; $25,000 for additional facilities at the Redwood substation; and $250,000 for changes in transmission lines.

In the Gas Department $300,000 is to be spent for new and larger mains in San Jose, where 1,852 new gas services will be installed.

For new and larger mains in the Redwood district, serving Redwood City, San Mateo, and Burlingame, $165,300 has been appropriated. In this territory it is planned to install 1,500 new gas services.

"The year's program," Adams states, "will be one of the most active in the history of the company. On account of the growth and development in almost every community we find large expenditures necessary for new and larger facilities to insure continuance of adequate and satisfactory service. The investment in new construction in this district is a part of the P. G. & E. development program for 1931, which will call for the spending of $40,000,000 in Northern California.

Plans Made For Spring Opening

March 20th Set as Date For Annual Event of The Retailers

Plans for the Retailers' annual spring opening to be held on March 20 were definitely decided upon at a meeting of the committee from the Retailers held Wednesday afternoon. The plans for the spring opening are similar to the very successful event which was arranged by the organization last year, but will be even more comprehensive.

The plans as now considered will include a window dressing contest among the merchants; a showing of the latest spring styles in all show windows, and possibly a style show and review in the Sequoia Theatre. The final plans for the style show have not yet been made, but a number of interesting suggestions are being considered.

Arrangements for the spring opening are being made by a committee recently appointed by the president of the organization, Al Davies, and consisting of Mrs. Franklin, James Hearne, Walter Hilton, Bob Murphy, Max Beeder and George McQueen.

Auto Thieves Taken by Cops

It was a hard day on auto thieves in Burlingame Wednesday, with the police picking up five youthful auto bandits. Two of the alleged auto thieves, Michael Cordova and John Vincent, both 19, were arrested while driving a car registered to Madge Russell of Burlingame. They are alleged to have stolen a car in San Francisco and driven to Burlingame where they abandoned it and took the Russell car.

Later three other boys, Joe Sciasia, 17; Al Piao, 18, and Tom Murphy, 18, were arrested in a car which the police say was stolen.

FORMER REDWOOD MAN HELD FOR ROBBERY OF OAKLAND BANK CLERK

Palmer Was Formerly Proprietor of Store on Broadway; Family Well Known Here
For Many Years

Charles R. Palmer, a former resident and store keeper of this city, and more recently a rancher near Hayward, was taken into custody Tuesday by Oakland police for a bank robbery in that city. Palmer was a bricklayer here and for a time ran a grocery store on Broadway, where the California Pacific Title Company office is now. In this business he was associated with Julius Allain under the name of Palmer & Allain.

The Palmers resided on Semicircle road, just south of this city. They left here several years ago to try ranching near Hayward.

Palmer was taken into custody by Oakland police on Tuesday in connection with the robbery of an Oakland bank of $44,300. After a grilling by police, Palmer is said to have confessed to the plot to rob the bank. He kidnaped Joseph R. Cardoza, manager of the Hayward branch of the Bank of America, he said, then forced Cardoza at pistol point to fabricate a deposit slip, enter the deposit in his bank book and accompany him to the Oakland branch of the bank.

There he kept the Hayward banker covered from a pocket while Cardoza initiated the check and approved it to Louis Tesio, cashier.

Afterward he required Cardoza to return to the ranch, threatened to hold him captive, but finally released him.

Palmer broke down after maintaining for hours that the reverse of charges which Cardoza placed with the authorities were true.

Just before dawn he led Frank Swain, chief criminal deputy sheriff, and Charles D. Wehr, deputy district attorney, to the place where the money was hidden.

It had been concealed under a sidewalk leading to the ranch house and was still in the sack which the Oakland branch bank had furnished.

The officers also recovered the pistol Palmer had used. It was hammerless, rusted and unloaded.

"I found it in the mud out by the henhouse," Palmer explained. Palmer, according to Frank Swain declared he did it to give his children a better start in life.

"If you had been watching your children starve to death for four years," he told Swain, "you would understand why I did the job."

The money was in bills. According to Cardoza, the rancher told him that he intended to turn the money over to his wife and children, then commit suicide.

Blackmail Plot Hinted
Officers indicated the possibility that Palmer was the victim of a blackmail plot by a statement that they hoped to question another man who recently talked several times with the rancher.

Swain, however, discounted the possibility by declaring that he had no belief in the existence of a third party to the affair.

Despite his counter-accusation against the banker, Palmer from the start was more directly under surveillance because of two other strange affairs with which he recently has been connected.

A year ago Luis Bianchi, owner of a ranch adjoining Palmer's, was found shot to death. Officers decided he was a suicide. His will left everything to Palmer. Relations contested.

DRIVER HELD TO ANSWER

W. J. Ritz, arrested here by Officers Snider and Douglass on March 1, and charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, was held to answer in the superior court for the offense. He was given a hearing in the court of Judge Edward I. McAuliffe. Ritz is at liberty on $1,000 bond bail.

World Seeks New Calendar

International attention will be focussed during the next year on the possibilities of improving the calendar. The subject is to be taken up by the League of Nations in a series of formal sessions during the summer and autumn, and official Washington will follow with keen interest the progress of European thought on the various plans which have been offered to amend and improve a system of months and days which originated with Pope Gregory XIII in 1582.

Students of calendar improvement have devised three major plans which are being widely advocated: they are the International Fixed Calendar, which proposes a year with thirteen months of 28 days each. The "Swiss Plan," favored in Europe, and the World Calendar are fundamentally the same, as the halves and quarters are equalized and a perpetual calendar is effected in each; the arrangement within the quarters is different. The World Calendar, however, is far less radical and less upsetting in its suggested changes, retaining the 12-month year, but lengthening February to 30 days, and making a few other alterations which will make the four quarters of the year exactly the same in length and arrangement.

Miss Elizabeth Achelis of New York, President of The World Calendar Association, Inc., has submitted an official outline of this plan to the League of Nations, in which she says:

"We deprecate all heedless, revolutionary measures, advocating at all times the more temperate, more considerate methods in calendar reform, as in all things. The World Calendar seems to fill these requirements most admirably, offering a superior plan and a practical proposition upon which to work."

Any agreement for calendar reform, according to official Washington, will take the form of a treaty, which, after ratification by the different governments, would then become the law of every country, providing for the legal conversion of all dates necessary in the change from old to new. The primary necessities of a new calendar are that it shall arrange the year in a regular order for commercial purposes, that it shall recognize astronomical conditions, that it shall uphold religious ideas and customs, serve all present needs, be easily adaptable to national and international usage, be temperate in its reforms and possess qualifications for easy transition.

Miss Achelis has suggested that before any ratification of a new calendar treaty is made by the United States Senate, there should be a national referendum, so that every citizen can have a voice in settling the question of the proposed change.

Value Received

Whether the family financial cloud has a black hue over its silver lining or merely a hazy shadow during this period of depression, this is nevertheless a good time for a thorough check-up on the family budget. Any successful business is inventoried regularly, but personal budgets on the other hand usually gambol along in utter unconcern about value received, profit and loss, waste and net gain. Very often such an inventory can cut the cost of home operation and at the same time increase net benefits to its members.

Fortunately for us an inventory often reveals the fact that the commodities which yield the most in human happiness are not always the most expensive. Among the foods it is often the simplest ones that are most healthful and wholesome. In the matter of personal habits, cleanliness is one of the cheapest as well as most satisfying. Soap and water, the sole essentials, cost but little. Yet, except for food and shelter, could anything be more necessary to comfort, health, happiness, self-respect and courage than simple cleanliness?

When paring down the budget it is comforting to remember in these days when economy is the rule, that some of the fundamentals of living cost so little that they never get into the "can't afford" class.

Your Modernist Furniture

Modernism in furniture and interior decoration has suddenly decided to go old-fashioned, according to the latest reports. It has turned over an old leaf, and is now favoring mid-Victorian designs and patterns. No longer do the newest pieces look as if they had been hacked out of rock by a cave man or molded in plasticine by a child in the kindergarten. Collier's Weekly advises home makers to "look at modernist furnishings with a wary eye, for modernism of the skyscraper school is already out-of-date."

The village jail at Schofield, Wis., not having any human inmates, has been used as a cage for a tiger. Wonder if it's a blind tiger.

Colossal Profits of Chicago's Beer Ring

The colossal profits of Chicago's beer ring have just been put into cold hard figures by Colonel Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce. The statistics of this notorious traffic were gathered for Colonel Randolph by a group of trained investigators, and their authenticity is certified by the authority of the business men who composed the sub-committee in charge of this work.

The number of saloons and speakeasies in Chicago is set at 20,000. They sell 100,000 barrels of beer weekly, which means that the average Chicagoan consumes nearly a pint a day. It costs the beer syndicate $1.80 to brew a barrel of beer and there are additional manufacturing costs which bring the total to $3 a barrel when it leaves the brewery. The standard price charged the speakeasies is $55 a barrel, leaving a gross profit of $52 a barrel, or a total gross profit to the beer ring of $5,500,000 weekly. Of this sum, Colonel Randolph estimates that a lump $2,000,000 is set aside every week for "protection," which means the corrupting of politicians and law enforcers.

"All the gang wars that have given Chicago its tragic reputation have been fought over this prize of beer control," says Colonel Randolph in Collier's Weekly. "In the days before Al Capone became all-powerful, there were several rival gangs which hijacked each other's trucks, stole beer, staged raids and reprisals. Today these rival gangs have been eliminated by assassination or intimidation, and Capone's syndicate reigns supreme in the field."

"Consider Capone's profits in beer. He and his syndicate control the illicit business from manufacture to distribution. They own a string of breweries and control the output of others. The highest item of expense is protection. The closest estimate we can make of the men directly on Capone's payroll is 2,000. How far his bribery extends into the police department is a matter for conjecture. Sergeants, lieutenants and captains are the men he must fix, and some of them have become suspiciously wealthy in recent years."

According to Colonel Randolph, Capone considers the whiskey trade as almost trivial in comparison with beer. It costs more to control the whiskey racket than it is worth. "Hoodlum gangs in Chicago have corrupted the law enforcement agencies to a degree that is tragic," he says, "but the cornerstone of their power is the sale of beer, not whiskey."

A Good Hearty Laugh Is the Need of the Business World

When we were a youngster on the farm, we devoted considerable of our time to feeding chickens and hunting eggs. One year one of our chickens got the pip and it spread to the entire flock. We did not know at the time and we do not know now what caused the disease; but we do not know that it spread until all of our egg producers were non-producers, and they wobbled around the barnyard, glassy-eyed, and with their tail feathers dragging in the dust.

An old farmer told us to mix cayenne pepper with their feed and it worked wonders. In a short time they all had pep instead of pip.

So, as the entire business world has been suffering with the pip for the past twelve months or more, we suggest that the pipers, instead of taking the cayenne pepper, indulge in a few hearty laughs occasionally. Having tried this remedy on ourself, we can testify to the fact that we have saved ourselves from a perfectly good nervous breakdown by substituting a good laugh for a glum look and groan.

Economy in Governmental Practice

The California Taxpayers' Association, in a recent article, advocates strongly the legalization of the photographic method of recording deeds and public documents, which is now being considered in this state.

This method has been tried in a number of states with uniform success. The common system of recording documents, by manual means, is of necessity slow, expensive, and, because of the human ability to err, not entirely accurate.

The photographic method on the other hand, is swift, absolutely accurate (as it gives an exact reproduction of the original), permanent, fraud-proof and—perhaps most important—remarkably economical.

The recording of documents takes thousands of dollars yearly of public funds. It is by such improvements as this, consistent with science and progress, that much may be done to lessen the tax problem.

Deep in the heart of almost every man is the ambition to own a business that will run on its own momentum, requiring nothing of its owner except spending the profits.

By their lukewarm or antagonistic attitude toward forward movements in civic affairs, some citizens give the impression they would be the town's receiver instead of a help to further its prosperity.

Love's Sacrifice

By Mildred Barbour

Although Sally followed her and tried to detain her, she hurried away.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

Sally Todd and Lois Montgomery seek careers in New York. Sally enters hospital training, after despatching of a career in the movies, and Lois marries a wealthy man many years her senior. Their paths diverge somewhat, for Lois's husband disapproves of Sally, who is very gay. On several occasions, after late parties, she has taken drugs to carry her through the day and is dismissed from the hospital. Lois provides her with a home and Dr. Dale Randolph offers her a job. She falls in love with him. He is strongly attracted to Lois, but, being a doctor, tells her she loves him. He dismisses her, but Lois persuades him to give her another chance. Sally, instead of being grateful, becomes jealous. Lois's husband is informed that she is in love with Randolph. He watches her closely, particularly when she is in Randolph's company. Sally's brother, Bert, who was in love with Lois at home, comes to New York. Sally tells him Lois is unhappily married, and still in love with him. His attention to Lois brings a remonstrance from Walter. Lois does not suspect that her husband, who resents her failure to aid him in realizing his social ambitions, is getting very tired of her. Hoping to find her in some indiscretion, he has her shadowed. He enlists Sally as an ally.

Chapter 64.

An Unheeded Warning

Bert, on learning that Sally had escaped from the sanitarium, was genuinely frightened. His first impulse was to notify Lois, but something told him that it was wiser not to alarm her unless it were necessary. But, when several hours had passed and there was no trace of her, he called the Walton residence. Lois was not there. He then telephoned Sally's house and waited, fuming with impatience, as the repeated ringing failed to bring a response.

At last he heard a voice—Sally's voice—and he spoke her name sharply. His angry tones brought her back to earth with a jerk. "If you're going to try to take me to that sanitarium again, I'll run away now," she threatened, and Bert, afraid that she might carry out her threat, told her she had earned her freedom.

"Where is Lois?" he asked anxiously. "How should I know?" she answered. "At home, I suppose. The place was deserted when I arrived." "Well, I'll be along in a little while," he promised. "Maybe you'd better not let Lois know that you are home. We've taken up a lot of her time lately."

Sally knew instinctively that Bert had a special reason for wanting to keep her away from Lois, but she didn't let him know that she guessed what was in his mind. Instead, she telephoned Lois. Surprised at not finding her in, she provided about the living-room until a noise in the hall sent her hurrying to the door. Lois stood there, looking as if she had come on a disagreeable errand.

"Is Bert here?" she asked. Then, as an afterthought: "I want to talk to you, Sally, but first I must see Bert."

"He's not here," said Sally, "but he'll come some time this evening. He just telephoned."

"I'll be back then," said Lois. "I can't wait now. But tell him, please, that I must see him tonight. Say that I asked him to wait for me."

"Why, Lois, what has happened?" asked Sally. "You look—"

But Lois was out of the door, and although Sally followed her and tried to detain her, she hurried away.

Sally went back to the house and succumbed to the drowsiness that Bert's telephone-call had, for the time being dispelled. She was fast asleep when he dashed into her room. In response to a vigorous shaking, she opened her eyes.

"Get up and pack," he said abruptly. "We're going away. That is, you are, and I'm coming soon. Look! And he showed her a roll of bills."

Sally gasped. "Where did you get that? Where are we going?" "One at a time, please," he said. "I earned the money on a business deal, and I'm going to make almost as much on another. I think. And you're going away for a holiday. I'll join you later."

Sally looked at him. "Bert Todd," she said, "you got that money from old Walton. You know you did. And it was for doing — for doing something to make trouble for Lois. I'm sure of that."

Bert laughed. "You seem very indignant," he said. "Why are you so high and mighty? You were pretty sore at Lois yourself, a while back. What if I did do something that will make her a little trouble. I'm going to do her a big favor pretty soon, and I'll straighten everything out."

And Sally had to be satisfied with that. "Now hurry with your packing," Bert urged. "I want to get out of here tonight."

"But Lois is coming to see you. She asked me to tell you to wait for her here."

The telephone interrupted Bert's answer. "That was Lois," he said, when he returned. "She wants to see me. I'll go over there now."

"To her home?" asked Sally. "She wasn't there when I telephoned just before you came."

"She's there now. I'll be back shortly, and I want to find you ready to go when I return."

Bert found Lois in a hotel in New York, where she had taken up a temporary residence.

"This looks as if you meant business," he said. "Is it all over between you and Walton?"

She smiled wanly. "How could it be anything else? I want to leave here as soon as possible. Bert. Will you help me? Will you go with me?"

He pretended reluctance. "That's a good deal to ask, Lois. Where'll we go?"

"Home—eventually. That is, I will."

"What about Dr. Randolph? Hasn't he anything to say?"

"I've just seen him," she said wearily. "He is ready to do anything, of course, but I have told him that he will only injure me by trying to help me. However, I'm not at all sure that I can make him do as I wish. That's why you must help me right away."

"Very well," he said. "I'll do it, but—"

"We'll leave tomorrow," she said quickly. "Can you be ready then?"

"I suppose so."

As he turned to go, there was a knock at the door. "A telegram, Madam," said a messenger.

Lois tore open the envelope. "It's from Dr. Randolph," she said. "He's on his way here."

Hollywood Film Shop

By DUANE HENNESSY

HOLLYWOOD, March 4 (UP)—While the majority of motion picture players who boast college educations are men, the women often break into collegiate publications, too, under the heading:

"Former student makes good in movies!"

For instance, there are Frances Dee and June MacCloy, on the Paramount lot.

Miss Dee, who appeared with Charles Rogers in "Along Came Youth," attended the University of Chicago. She is working with Jack Oakie at present in "Night Life," a filmization of "June Moon."

Miss Dee quit college to become an extra girl and quickly rose to leading roles.

Miss MacCloy dropped her studies for a chance to work in George White's Schandals. Her subsequent musical comedy, radio and night club work brought her into pictures.

An explanation of the preponderance of ex-collegiate men actors over former co-eds is made by B. P. Schulberg, Paramount executive. He points out that leading men must be more mature than leading women, hence a girl must start film work during natural college years, while men can wait until after their education is finished.

At the same studio where the two girls mentioned are working are no less than 13 male contract players who attended college. They are:

GARY COOPER—Ginnell College in Iowa before beginning career as newspaper artist. Changed to films.

REGIS TOOMEY—Degree from University of Pittsburgh. Began acting in stock during summer vacations.

NORMAN POSTER—Two years at Carnegie Tech before he became a newspaper reporter and later a stage actor.

FREDERIC MARCH—Winner of a "W" in athletic, president of the senior class and an honor student at Wisconsin.

CHARLES ROGERS—Junior in Journalism at Kansas when received an offer to attend Paramount Picture School.

LEON ERROL—St. Joseph's College and Sydney University in New South Wales before theatre called.

CHARLES STARRETT—Degree from Dartmouth.

SKEETS GALLAGHER—Tried civil engineering at Rose Polytechnic Institution and law at Indiana before decided to become actor.

STUART ERWIN—Struggling sophomore at University of California when he decided he couldn't wait longer to act.

MARTIN BURTON—Laid aside law books at Indiana when Ina Claire urged him to devote his talents to stage work.

PHILIPS HOLMES—Attending Princeton when Paramount made a picture on the campus and cast him in a part.

FRANK MORGAN—Graduate of Cornell.

OLIVE BROOK—Forced to give up law at Dulwich College in England and turn to acting when his finances gave out.

And if beauty means anything, it won't surprise us if she achieves her ambition real shortly. Her name is Frances Dade, and before deciding to "twinkle" her way into Hollywood, she played roles in several stage productions in New York. By way of celebrating her 21st birthday a few days ago, the slim, blonde beauty won the honor of being the first American girl to be placed under personal contract by Samuel Goldwyn, head of the United Artist Studios in Hollywood.

MENLO PARK

The San Mateo county public library will have a branch established in the spare room on the east side of the Atherton town hall in about a month and it will be open on two afternoons a week. At the meeting of the Atherton City Council last week a communication was received from the county librarian stating that the offer of the room for the library was accepted with the stipulation that it would be vacated if its space was needed for official business.

Plans for the improvement of Oak Grove, Laurel avenue, Pine street, Cherry street, Mills and Glenwood avenues were presented to the council Friday night last. Mayor Weeden, Councilmen Crane, Anderson and Dale were present. The council and property owners in that section inspected the plans, all appearing to approve them. George Casey thought that Oak Grove avenue should be widened to sixty feet. He thought the present width of 47 feet was inadequate for the big traffic that would go over it when the underpass would be constructed. The Casey family own large holdings on Oak Grove avenue.

Mrs. James Bogie, residing on Oak Grove avenue, is recovering from a recent severe illness.

Emma Stribling, who is seeking reelection on the Menlo Park Sanitary Board, has made a very capable and efficient official. She has always attended the meetings of the board and taken an active interest in the affairs of the sanitary district. She deserves a large vote in the district.

Denis Mera, for many years the local poet, writes from Arizona, where he went some months ago to find cure from lung trouble, that he is improving and may return to Menlo Park in the near future. For many years Mr. Mera was the gate-man at the Oak Grove crossing.

Edward Eyre, Jr., a candidate for trustee of the Menlo Park Sanitary District at the election on March 9, comes from a pioneer family of Atherton. His grandfather, the late Faxon D. Atherton, after whom the town is named, came to that community in the sixties. He owned a vast tract of land comprising nearly all of Atherton. Col. Eyre, another pioneer of Atherton, was the maternal grandfather of the young candidate. Mr. Eyre is a worthy young man and should receive a big vote.

Frank Lintner has resigned from the Menlo Park police department, to give his full attention to his pigeon business. His father recently moved to San Jose, leaving the care of the business to his son, who only devoted a portion of his time to it. The vacancy will not be filled by the council in the interest of retrenchment and economy.

Congress has adjourned after a stormy session. Senator Shortridge, after spending a short time in Florida for rest, will come here to spend his summer. Mr. Shortridge had a bill prepared giving Menlo Park a new postoffice building, but could not get it through during the session. He may be able to secure the appropriate at the next session. The rapid growth of the business of the local office necessitates more room and a larger building.

A large crowd attended the first card game of a series of four by the Native Daughters Tuesday evening. The hall was crowded to the doors. The next game will be held next Tuesday evening.

W. T. Casey, the pioneer plumber is seeking a place on the sanitary board. Casey would make a good official. He knows the wants of the district. It would be well to have an experienced plumber on the board.

Mr. Weiss, a wealthy optometrist of San Francisco with a home in Oakland, has purchased ten acres of land on Olive street, fronting on the San Francisco creek from Stanford University. The property was not a part of the Stanford grant, which precludes the sale of any part of the vast holding. The ten acres was purchased subsequent to the grant. Mr. Weiss will erect a pretty dwelling on the property and may live here a good portion of the year. His daughter, who is married to a Stanford University professor, resides at Atherton. Mr. Weiss is quite an acquisition to the community.

Three dances a week are now being held at the Blue Moon dance hall, instead of two. Dances are held on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings of each week.

Mrs. George Murlock, nee Casey and her sister, Mrs. May Jackson, were here during the week looking over their holdings with a view of improving them. Both women reside in San Francisco.

F. W. Johnson has consented to become a candidate to succeed himself as trustee of the grammar school. The election takes place on March 27. Mr. Johnson is a splendid official and should be retained in office. He has no opponent for the place.

The work of constructing the curb in Stanford Park under the Wood contract will begin next week. Mr. Wiggins, a local man, has the subcontract and will employ all Menlo Park men on the work.

A Weidner, superintendent of construction work in Stanford Park, has leased a two-story building on Doyle street, and with him are his book-keeper and foreman. They will occupy the building until the Wood contract for these improvements is completed which will be some time next summer.

Peter A. Smith, living on Doyle street and employed on the Stanford campus, died suddenly last Sunday while at work. He was interred in Alta Mesa cemetery on Wednesday. The deceased was born and raised at Halfmoon Bay, and was the adopted son of the late J. Schubert. The deceased was a schoolmate of Dr. McGovern, the popular coroner and public administrator, who by a strange quirk of fate is to administer upon the Smith estate.

Alonso York, the colored bootblack at a local barber shop, has ambitions to become a great lawyer. Between shines he studies Blackstone. He has a good grasp of his subject and soon will take the bar examination with a splendid chance of passing. York contemplates, if he makes the hurdles, to open an office in Los Angeles, where there is a big colored population. With his ambition and a desire to get some where in the world, he should succeed.

The residents of Paraiso Park held a meeting in the city hall Tuesday evening to discuss the plan to improve streets in that section. City Engineer Mehl was present to give all the information asked by the big crowd. The majority favored the contemplated improvements. Some objected on the ground that a better class of work than that proposed, should be done. Another meeting will be held this evening to further discuss the matter.

WOODSIDE

Clarence Wilcox was in Napa last week in attendance upon a convention of peace officers from the bay counties. The large delegation that gathered for the convention was entertained at luncheon by the Rotary Club of Napa.

The Parent-Teacher Association met in regular session on Thursday afternoon. In addition to the business meeting, there were several addresses and a musical program presented by pupils of the school under the direction of Mrs. Helen Huebner.

The Live Oak Garage has reopened under the management of William Morrison of Redwood City. Morrison was employed at this garage for several months last year and earned a local reputation as a skillful and conscientious mechanic.

The blacksmithshop, too, is open again. Still suffering from the effects of injuries suffered when he was knocked down by an automobile, Louis Belmont has again donned the leather apron. Spring has come and there are horses to be shod, plowshares to be sharpened, and farm equipment to be repaired. The blacksmith becomes a necessity for the community, and the community will be satisfied with none but Belmont.

Mr. and Mrs. August Menglen of Woodside, whose new place, "The Pagoda" they have just begun to occupy, were hosts the past week to Mrs. Albert Tingman of San Diego and Mrs. Mengler's daughter, Mrs. Oren Greene, and her husband of Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. Green were only recently married. The past several months they were guests of Mr. Frederick Dorsey of Saint Paul, Minnesota, who is vice-president of the Great Northern Railway. He is uncle of the bride.

Mrs. Tingman was born sixty-nine years ago on the Las Pulgas rancho near Woodside and knew all the old settlers. She has not visited this locality since the year President Garfield was assassinated and of course sees so many changes she hardly recognized the country. Mrs. Tingman's late husband was a prominent official of the Santa Fe. Nearly fifty years ago they took up much government land in the southwets, one place being two miles of ocean front near Solano Beach, the beach where Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks have their Rancho Zorro and their famous cottage on a cliff. The old home of the Tingmans in Encinitas was an extensive property filled with romance. Only recently Mrs. Tingman sold it and the magnificent old trees and fine garden were uprooted to make way for subdividing. She is looking for another home and may select some property near Woodside. Mrs. Tingman recalls that she was visiting Miss Addie Tripp at Woodside when the news came of Garfield's assassination.

CHARGED WITH DESERTION

Petition for divorce was filed in the county clerk's office on Tuesday afternoon by Marion L. Walker, who charges that his wife Mrs.

Violet Walker deserted him in Ventura two years after their marriage.

The Walkers, according to the complaint, were married in 1924. They have no children. Walker is being represented by Attorney Norman Menefee, of this city.

PARAFFIN HELPS SHOVELERS

SANFORD, Me. (UP)—Snow shovelers in other parts of the country may be handicapped because snow clings to their shovels, but locally that problem has been solved.

Former Deputy Sheriff Newell T. Fogg convinced the idea of coating shovels with paraffin, and this plan is now being used successfully throughout the town.

PHILADELPHIA, March 4—(UP)—The recent anniversary of the 119th birthday of Dickens lead to an exhibition of the manuscripts of the "Pickwick Papers" by Dr. Rosen-back, noted collector of rare literary items. The old manuscripts show that the compositor was forced to insert periods and commas, as the novelist failed to place them in his original draft.

Speedy Horses Being Groomed
For Participation on Tanforan Track

Promising young thoroughbreds owned by Charles T. Boots, are being prepared for the Tanforan meeting to open Tuesday, March thirty first. He has the band over at Pleasanton and is in personal direction of their conditioning for the races. A recent inspection of the runners convinced well qualified critics that the "babies" are much above the ordinary.

Elmwood Stock Farm, near Milpitas, where the Boots two year olds were foaled, has been continuously a nursery of runners since the eighteen fifties, having been founded by William Boots, father of "Charley." Its record in sending out winners to the important courses of the country would be hard to surpass.

"Charley" Boots has long been a successful breeder. Fans still talk of the prowess of the sons and daughters of Brutus, grandson of the Epsom Derby winner Macaroni. Lately he achieved renown through his rearing of the progeny of imported War Cry, son of the Epsom Derby winner Sunstar. A while back, he disposed of War Cry to John W. Marchbank and the well-known sire is now holding court at Heather Farm.

Ever on the alert for good blood Boots purchased imported Brig O'Doon several years ago and a stallion of the individuality and strains of this fellow is well worth giving a thorough trial. The first of the "Briggs" will be seen under colors at the Tanforan meet. The breeder is even hopeful of having another Peter the Great, an Elmwood colt that made turf history in the old days.

Brig O'Doon is of the ever popular Bend Or line. He is by the successful sire Bridge of Earn, a great grand son of Bend Or through Cyllene and Bona Vista. St. Simon the undefeated, is not so much heard of nowadays on the top line blood is much in demand on the distaff side, just where "Brig" has it, being out of a daughter of St. Simon's son S. Grusquin.

Trials at Pleasanton indicate the youngsters of the imported horse can run as their conformation would suggest, and it would not be surprising if they carried their speed over a route, as their breeding promises.

AGED CHAMP CHALLENGES LONG DISTANCE SKATERS

EVANSTON, Ill., March 4 (UP)—Charles Levere, 61, who holds the world's rope jumping championship, hopes to add the long distance skating championship to his laurels and has issued a challenge to all skaters for match distance races.

The Evanston athlete put on a pair of skates for the first time when he was 5. In 1925 he entered a 100-mile race in Rogers Park and finished second, three minutes behind Robert Reed. The two skated the distance without a stop and were the only two contestants to finish. Since that time he has entered and won many skate marathons.

SCHOOL CAGE STAR ACCOMPANIES Y TEAM

Bob Albers, star Sequoia Union high school basketball player, and Coach Frank Griffin, director of the Sequoia boys' physical education department, left for Kansas City Wednesday evening with Young Men's Institute basketball team of San Francisco.

The Y. M. I. team will compete for national honors back East over a two-week period. Albers, a senior at Sequoia, is a member of the team and one of the players responsible for the city's team winning the Pacific Athletic Association hoop title. He scored 17 points to take high-point honors in the title game with the Rossi Florist team last week.

The squad, with its supporters and coach, Frank Needles, will return via the Grand Canyon, where the group will visit the points of interest. A send-off was given the team by club members and high school friends of Albers and Coach Griffin when they left last Wednesday evening.

INTERCLASS TRACK OPENS AT SEQUOIA

Interclass track meets are to be held at Sequoia Union high school Wednesday and Friday, according to Coach Ray Dimick and the board of athletic control.

Boys eligible to compete must be out for track or some other sport or be out for practice three weeks in advance of the meets. The seniors won last year, because of their good showing in the heavyweight division.

The frosh and sophs have their advantage in the lightweight division, because of the plentiful material. There will be 110-pound, 120, 130, and unlimited divisions in the interclass meets.

The lightweight classes will be run off Wednesday and the unlimited on Friday after school. Class numerals each with a winged foot designating track will be awarded boys who score 10 points for their class in the meets.

SWIMMING TEAM TO MEET TAMALPIAS HIGH

By GENE HARTNEY
In their first swimming meet of the season, the Sequoia Union high school varsity swimming team will clash with the Tamalpais high school paddlers in a dual meet in the Marin school's pool.

The Cherkees defeated the Tamalpais team last year and hope to repeat the performance. Not many are out this year, but the varsity will be strong, with such veterans returning as Frank Goldthwaite, captain last year and sprint man, "K" Martin, Walter Worrell, LeRoy Kennedy, Jim Adams, and Louis Eaton.

Coach Jim Eva, Cherkee swim mentor, has scheduled a number of practice swim meets for the coming season, including some of the foremost high schools in the bay region.

The Cherkees meet the Galileo high paddlers in the Sequoia pool March 18; Alameda high, here, Friday, March 20; Berkeley, here, Friday, March 20; Sacramento high, here, Saturday, April 4; Stockton, here, Friday, April 10; Polytechnic high of San Francisco, here, Friday, April 17. Several more practice meets will fill in the schedule before the championships meets in May, including the Peninsula Athletic League and the North Coast section.

PLAN SENDING WATER TEAM TO LOS ANGELES

By GENE HARTNEY

Plans were underway this week for raising funds to send the Sequoia Union high school water polo team to compete for state honors in Los Angeles over the week-end of March 13, 15, and 16.

Under the direction of members of the water polo team a benefit play is to be given Friday evening to help raise the necessary expenses.

Coach Jim Eva, swimming mentor, believes that the Cherkee team, after a successful season, will go a long way toward capturing the unofficial state title for water polo.

CHEROKEES WIN 13 TO 4 FROM MT. VIEW NINE

After their 13 to 4 defeat at the hands of the strong Stanford frosh baseball team on the University diamond last Tuesday, the Sequoia Union high school team defeated the Mountain View high tossers on the Sequoia diamond 13 to 4.

The Cherkees played their best game of the season against the Mountain View team. Elbert Garcia threw good balls for seven innings, allowing the visitors only one hit and that to the first man up in the first inning.

Al Tognoli, third base, and Ed Preader, fielder, played excellent ball, handling nine chances in good shape.

All the members on the team got a chance in the contest in the eighth inning, when the Mountain View team got their four runs.

The visiting twirlers handed out 15 hits to the Cherkees, while they were collecting three safeties from Sequoia hurlers.

Al Tognoli connected for a home run and Bill Lewis garnered a triple during the game to lead the long distance slugging attack for the Cherkees.

This afternoon the Cherkees travel to Santa Clara to engage the Bellarmine Preps in a diamond battle. Next Tuesday the varsity takes on St. James high on the Cherokee field, while Friday the locals open the Peninsula Athletic League against South San Francisco on the northerners' diamond.

Following was the Sequoia lineup against Mountain View: Garcia, pitcher; Cullen, catcher; McGuire, first base; E. Garcia, second base; Tognoli, third base; Maloney, shortstop; Preader, Jellch, and Hoffman, fielders.

FRENCH PLAN TO TAKE ROUGHNESS OUT OF RUGBY

PARIS, March 4 (UP)—To prevent Rugby from becoming as rough as American football, the French Federation has appointed a special commission of five experts. This commission is to study means to eliminate roughness and alleged brutality.

Since October of 1930, three deaths have resulted over Rugby in France, while over 30 deaths are recorded since the close of the war. Scores of serious injuries, including broken bones, concussion of the brain and internal lesions occur every year. According to the sporting critic of Excelsior and many other writers, Rugby has become much rougher since 1918.

Feeling over the alleged brutality has been tense throughout the country ever since the trial at Bordeaux of the player Talliantou, accused of homicide following the death of an opponent whom he tackled. Although found guilty of the charge, he was given benefit of the First Offender's Act and escaped serving the sentence, but the game itself is now under trial.

Many critics feel that the youth of today takes victory in athletics too seriously and tries to win at any cost. Others blame the casualties upon over-zealous referees.

GIRL GOLFER TO CRUSADE

PINEHURST, N. C., March 4 (UP)—Miss Helen Waring, the 20-year-old Pinehurst golfer who in the past two seasons has captured a major portion of honors here and in other parts of the state, plans to do some crusading this year. She never has played golf in the north during the summer.

Young 'Musher' After Scotty Allen's Fame

By GEORGE E. POWERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

TRUCKEE, Cal., March 5—Here is a youngster, Donald Cowell, 14, whose sole ambition is to make of himself a greater dog racer than the famous Alaskan musher, Scotty Allen. Donald experienced his first taste of real competition last month in the Tahoe-Truckee dog derby.

Donald, with a team of three dogs he owned and three he borrowed, covered the gruelling 60-mile course against the cream of the country's dog racers. He finished last—but he did finish, which was something wise old heads in the game predicted he would not do. And today those same wise old heads are unstinting in their praise, and are even predicting that next year he will prove dangerous competition.

Young Cowell, who has lived in Truckee most of his short life, first manifested ambitions to become a dog racer at the age of 10. Securing Brownie, the dog shown with him in the accompanying picture, and her two pups, he set to the task of training her to be a leader.

The ensuing three years were consumed in teaching Brownie what "gee" and "haw" meant, and in training her sons, who like herself, were crosses between an alderdale and a hound, to work with her. Donald had only three dogs toward a team when preparations for this year's race got under way, but he was determined to be among the starters.

Another entrant in the derby, touched by the sincerity of the likeable, freckled-faced would-be musher, lent him three dogs. So, the day of the race young Cowell was on the starting line with a team. And to the surprise of all but himself, he completed the two round trips between Truckee and Lake Tahoe.

Lack of experience, that comes

LEGISLATION PROPOSED IN CONSERVATION OF WILD GAME

Many Bills Are Considered To Regulate Hunting and Fishing

By HOMER L. ROBERTS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 4 (UP)—From the creation of new state game reserves to the taxation of shotgun shells to buy and establish public shooting grounds, the fish and game measures before the state legislature run the gamut from the serious to the ridiculous.

One lawmaker wants $50,000 appropriated to establish a preserve for tule elk in Kern county. Other bills call for creation of game refuges in Sacramento and El Dorado counties.

S. B. 471 would require the state fish and game commission to hold public meeting at least every 3 months, and publish notice of such meetings. Another bill would establish a marine and commercial fish commission in the department of natural resources.

Only with years of driving, however, proved too great an obstacle to overcome. Try as he might, he couldn't get out of his team the speed his veteran competitors knew how to get from their dogs; and this despite the fact that he ran the greater part of the race, instead of riding the sled.

Far from being disheartened by his failure to finish better than last, this young aspirant to even greater fame than that enjoyed by the famous Scotty Allen is elated that he finished the race. Between now and next year's event he means to acquire three more dogs of his own, and, profiting by the experience gained in this year's derby, to whip into shape a team of dogs that will make somebody sit up and take notice when another Truckee-Tahoe derby rolls around.

Drastic revision of the trespass laws are provided in other bills. One would make it a misdemeanor for anyone to enter private land or upon any lake or stream within private lands posted with trespass notices, for the purpose of fishing or hunting without first obtaining written permission from the owner.

Increases in the annual state fishing license to raise funds for establishing public shooting and fishing parks are asked in another bill. The increases would be: From $2 to $3 for citizens over 18 years of age who reside in California; citizens non-residents, from $3 to $4; aliens from $5 to $6. Licenses, under S. B. 692 would require purchasers to agree to show it to any fish and game deputy or other peace officers, and the licenses would be for fiscal years instead of calendar years.

Foreign-born persons who have not declared their intention to become citizens would be prohibited from owning firearms, one legislator proposes. The same bill would set a $25 fishing license for persons ineligible to citizenship.

Other fish and game measures are:

Closing season on sagehens and grouse, and increasing weekly limits on ducks from 50 to 60 birds.

Limiting shooting days on commercial hunting clubs to Sundays, Wednesdays and Saturdays, legal holidays, and opening and closing days of the season.

Prohibiting use of a pump or automatic shotgun firing more than three shots without reloading.

Prohibiting use of automobile spotlights to hunt game.

Prohibiting owner of property to kill deer or other wild game found destroying crops. Impowering state to issue a permit to kill deer found destroying crops. Requiring state to pay not to exceed 90 cents a rod toward construction of fences to protect farm property against depredations of deer.

Establishing open season on ring-necked pheasants from November 30 to December 8.

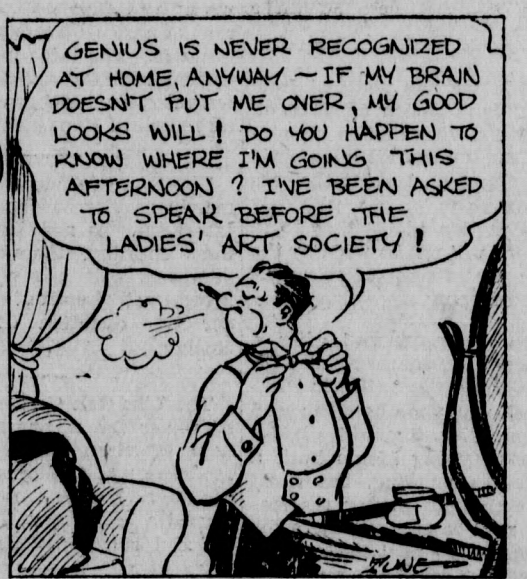

Adopting California valley quail as official bird and emblem of California.

Removing jackrabbits from classification of predatory animals.

Prohibiting taking of catfish for commercial purposes. Making it unlawful to catch trout less than 6 inches in length.

Desert Plant Yields Rubber For Industry

Mexican Shrub Causes Boom In California Valley

By COL. ROLIN G. WATKINS

SALINAS, Cal., March 4 (UP)—The day of "infant industries" has returned, and the national congress has recognized California's newest—the production of rubber from a domesticated form of Mexican desert shrub called Guayule and pronounced "wy-oo-lay."

In the Salinas valley 6,000 acres have been planted to this shrub. Recently the International Rubber Company opened its $150,000 plant here for the reduction of the shrub into commercial rubber. Daily production runs to 1,000 pounds.

This is the first plant of its kind in the United States, although the company has four others (not in operation at present) in Old Mexico.

The new plant here was not placed in operation, however, until the congress, by an amendment to the biennial army supplies bill, removed rubber from the list of specially-exempted articles which the secretary of war was not compelled to buy within the confines of the nation.

Not New Plant
Making of rubber from Guayule is nothing new, according to George H. Carnahan, head of Intercontinental Rubber Company and subsidiaries.

For more than a quarter of a century his company has been manufacturing rubber from the shrub taken from its native areas in northern Mexico and southern Texas. Revolutions of 1920 and 1921 handicapped production. Then the low price of rubber in the past few years caused the company to close its Mexican factories completely.

Realizing that the growth of the wild shrub could furnish a supply only for a certain number of years, Carnahan and his aides conceived the idea of domesticating it outside of Mexico. In 1919 they planted an experimental plot here, five acres in extent. This year 2,000 acres of the shrub will be cut from the fields of the company in this valley to be reduced to rubber.

A similar acreage will be planted each year until the price of rubber or the demand for it, will create another plant.

The process of production, from the seeding of plant beds within an immense nursery, to the final delivery of the rubber in 260-pound blocks ready for the market, has been completely mechanized.

Labor Problem
In this way Intercontinental Rubber Company, which also owns immense plantations of hevea rubber trees in Sumatra, Dutch East Indies, has been able to solve the labor problem. One American laborer, at the going wage, can produce just as much rubber from the guayule shrub in one year as can 16 Sumatran coolies drawing the same amount of money.

Altogether 10 implements, each of which has been especially devised and developed, are used in the process of growth and delivery to the factory. These include a seed gatherer, topper and cutter in the nursery, a six-row planter setting the plants in rows, six-row cultivator, cutting severing the roots at nine inches underground when ready for harvesting, duster to relieve the shrubs of dirt, windrower and harrower.

Four-Hour Job
This last instrument picks up the shrubs from the ground and reduces them to small bits before they are hauled into the factory. From the time they reach the factory until delivery of the 260-pound block of rubber is exactly four hours.

Four years are required for the plants to develop. They may be left in the ground for 10 years with an increased rubber content each year.

According to Carnahan, America's normal rubber requirements total 1,000,000,000 pounds. This far exceeds the present possibilities of domestic production. However, his company has made experiments which prove that vast Southern California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas areas will produce the shrub at a profit.

At present America imports 81 per cent of the world's rubber supply, 81 per cent of which is turned into tires and tubes for motor-propelled vehicles.

The new product, guayule, is not a rubber substitute, is not synthetic, but is of exactly the same chemical content as the hevea rubber from the middle eastern areas.

Bandages Her Wedding Gown

NEW HAVEN, Conn., (UP)—Bandages formed a large part of the wedding costume of Miss Anna McDermott, who was burned severely while cleaning her gown on the eve of her wedding. The ceremony was performed while the priest, bridegroom and witnesses gathered around her bed.

WALK IN RAIN FOR PAY

ENNAUGATUCK, Conn., (UP)—A group of girls employed by a rubber goods concern here make their living by walking in the rain. Wearing the latest fashion in rubber footwear, they tramp the streets to subject them to winter weather tests. They are paid by the hour.

HE HELD EIGHT ACES

WETHERFIELD, Conn., (UP)—Henry Cowan of New York was so amazed he dropped his cards when, in a friendly little pinocle game at the home of his mother here, he dealt eight aces from the first 12 cards off the pack.

New Racket Dupes Coast Bootleggers

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4 (UP)—A new "racket," which has cost San Francisco bootleggers thousands of dollars was revealed today by William G. Walker, federal prohibition administrator.

The new "shake-down," one of the cleverest yet unearthed, makes the United States mails an unwitting accomplice, and utilizes vanishing ink. Walker explains the plan: The shake-down artist selects a dozen or more bootlegging resorts as the scene of his operations, and proceeds to establish himself as a steady patron.

During several weeks he convinces the proprietors that he is a "big shot" and is "in the know" in prohibition circles, dropping broad hints that he has a "pull" with federal officers.

This process complete, he writes a letter, purported to represent the report of an undercover agent to the prohibition department. The letter gives details concerning any one of the various bootlegging resorts with whom he has established contact. Notes regarding how to gain admittance, what drinks are served, and other details are contained.

The letter is sealed in an envelope, which he then addresses to himself, in vanishing ink. He then mails it, receives it at his own address, with the envelope bearing a regularly cancelled stamp.

His own address promptly disappears as the vanishing ink gets in its work, and the bunco man substitutes the prohibition headquarters' address.

The rest is easy. He simply takes the letter to the bootlegger whose place is described, shows it to him, and convinces him that after an informer sent the letter to headquarters, it was only through his own influence that a raid was halted.

The bootlegger, of course, expresses his gratitude financially. Both the prohibition and post-office departments are setting their best men at work to catch the perpetrator of the latest "racket."

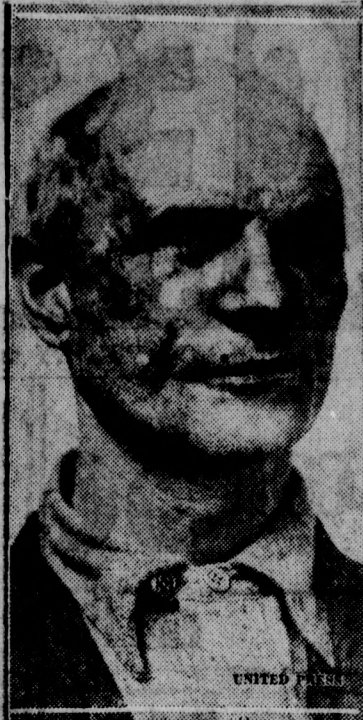

Letters Asked in McAuliffe Estate

Letters of administration in the estate of Mrs. Mary U. McAuliffe have been petitioned for in the superior court of this county by Eugene F. McAuliffe, a son. In addition to the petitioner, the heirs at law are three sons and a daughter, Roy, Edward and Frank McAuliffe, and Mrs. Rudolph Rapsey. Judge Rudolph Rapsey of San Bruno is attorney for the petitioner.

CAUGHT COLD STORAGE FISH

BARNSTABLE, Mass., (UP)—James Eldredge was puzzled when he found he had caught several salt water fish in his traps in a fresh water pond. Finally friends explained that the codfish had been obtained at a cold storage plant and placed in the traps as a practical joke.

LIGHT TELLS OF BITES

KIOWA, Okla., (UP)—Night fishing has been simplified by Cyrus V. See who has invented a device consisting of a small flash-light battery attached to the butt of a fishing pole with wires connecting it with a flashlight bulb on the other end. The bulb lights when a fish is caught on the hook.

"SNOOPERS" NOTHING NEW

BOSTON, March 4 (UP)—The so-called prohibition "snooper" apparently is nothing new. The Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League points out that in the original charter of the Bay State Colony, as far back as 1692, provision was made for paying half the proceeds of fines to informers.

Weather Bureau Celebrates Its 61st Birthday

Program for Expansion of Service Now Planned

WASHINGTON, March 5 (UP)—

The United States Weather Bureau, warder of life and property over most of a continent and its territories, will celebrate its 61st birthday today with plans for extension of its already vast services.

From a little unit consisting of 30 inland telegraph operators under the Army Signal Service, the bureau has expanded its operations into the sphere of all the elements. In 1870 its only work was to telegraph the approach of storms in a limited area. Today it is guardian of shipping in three oceans, of 18,000 miles of airways, watchman against earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, the ebb and flow of tides, freshets of rivers, and even the intensity of solar radiation.

The bureau has plans, however, to intensify the more important of these services relating to aviation and transoceanic shipping. It has just asked for a Congressional appropriation of $500,000 with which it plans to increase its observations along 2,000 more miles of airlines. In the near future it plans to watch over 25,000 miles and to offer precise data for airplanes extending from the west coast of North America to Hawaii and the east coast to Bermuda.

It has a program for rebuilding of observation stations, replacement of equipment and other improvements in its far-flung territorial possessions, including Porto Rico, where Caribbean hurricanes are watched, in Alaska where the air service is notified of dangerous elements and in Hawaii.

One of the programs to which the bureau attaches most importance, however, is international cooperation for weather observations at sea. As a result of Paris conferences in 1928 the leading shipping nations agreed to secure a large number of ships which would contribute to this exchange. German, British and French ships are already participating with United States vessels. The number of vessels of each nation engaged in the project is to be in proportion to the nation's total tonnage of vessels over 100 tons.

Under this plan there will even-

FOUND

Blaming amnesia for her disappearance from Hollywood Feb. 23, Edna Mae Cooper, aviatrix, today lies in a Monterey, Calif., hospital trying to "figure out" what transpired during the five days that span her departure from Hollywood and arrival in Monterey. Miss Cooper is unable to explain a severe injury at the base of her skull and numerous bruises on her right leg.

ually be 1,000 selected ships of all nations sending radio reports regularly during their voyages at sea. Of this number 180 will be of U. S. registry. The hours of observation of all selected ships will be identical in all parts of the world—midnight, six o'clock in the morning, noon and 6 o'clock at night. Some ships having enough watch officers will forward all four observations daily, but on most vessels only two will be radioed, giving preference to those that fall within the daylight hours.

Colleagues Get New Snake Skin

RALEIGH, N. C., (UP)—State College engineers have obtained a "new skin" for their colossal green snake which will lead the Engineers' Fair here April 4. Work of assembling the artificial reptile has begun. The fair and parade will be headed by G. W. Dammeron, Bessemer City, selected as "Saint Patrick," and Miss Mary Sue Borders, Shelby, "Princess Pat."

MYSTERY LINER READY BY 1934

PARIS, March 4 (UP)—The new French super-liner for the North Atlantic race will be swifter than the Bremen and Europa, larger than the Leviathan and Majestic, now the largest ships afloat, and more luxurious than the Ile de France.

The mystery liner is rapidly taking form in the Penhoet Shipyards at Saint Nazaire and French Line officials confirm that the ship will be delivered by the Spring of 1934, to take its place in four and one-half day service from Harve to New York.

When that liner is in operation it will be possible to take midnight supper in New York after the show on a Friday night and eat your Tuesday luncheon in Paris. In rush season the liner can make the round trip from New York to France and back again in 10 days.

With three years left ahead of them, officials of the French Line have refused to name the liner for the time being and it is officially known as the super-Ile-de-France. The name "La Paix," meaning "Peace" was suggested, but it brought fear of ridicule as "The Ark."

The ship will have four propellers driven by electric motors, the current furnished by four generators driven by steam turbines, working with high-pressure superheated steam.

HISTORIC BELL 80 YEARS OLD

ALTOONA, Pa., March 5 (UP)—A historic bell is rounding out its 80th year in the clock tower of St. Mark's Catholic Church.

The bell was originally installed in the first shop erected by the Pennsylvania Railroad here and was used to call the men to work.

It was cast in Troy, N. Y., in 1850 and was brought here the next year.

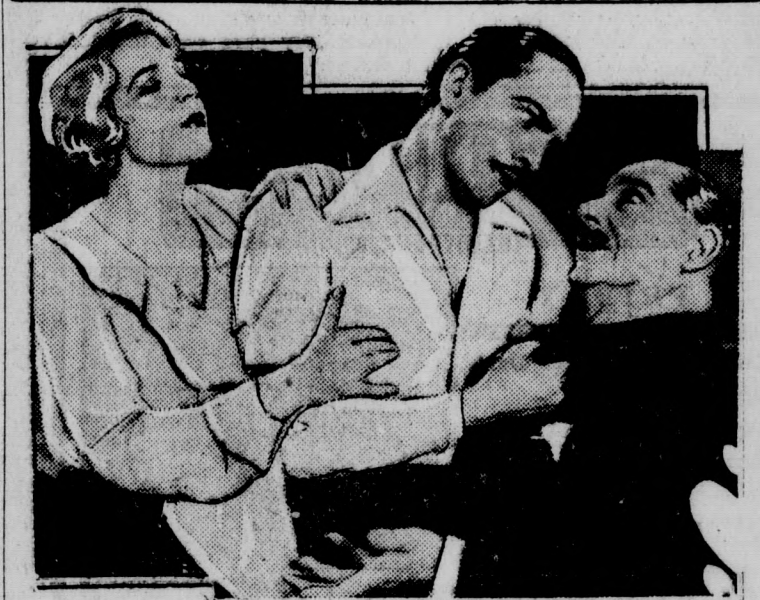

John Montgomery rang it for 54 years. It since has become known as Montgomery's Bell.

A steam siren replaced the bell in 1895 and it was placed in storage. When it was decided to place a clock in the tower of St. Mark's Church in 1902 the bell was resurrected.

Simultaneously, the Cunard Line will be building one or two even larger liners. The French boat will be more than 1,000 feet in length.

THREE CLASSES TO TRAVEL

DALLAS, Tex., (UP)—Three Southern Methodist University classes will go to Europe next summer. Prof. E. E. Lelsey will conduct an English poetry class to Oxford. Prof. S. D. Myers will take a government group to Geneva, Switzerland, and Miss Olive Donaldson will lead an art group on a tour of London, Paris, Milan, Rome and other points.
